

Glenn M. Reiter

Glenn M. Reiter is a retired partner of Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP, a major international law firm headquartered in New York City. Glenn regularly represented U.S. and non-U.S. corporations, government-related entities and major investment banks in initial public offerings and other equity offerings, debt offerings, debt restructurings, mergers and acquisitions, and other types of corporate transactions. Glenn was active in transactions involving Latin America, the Caribbean, Canada and Europe in addition to the United States.

Glenn was managing partner of the London office of Simpson Thacher from 1986 to 1990.

Glenn received in 1973 his B.A. degree summa cum laude from Yale College, where he was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He received in 1976 his J.D. degree from Yale Law School, where he was a Note Editor of The Yale Law Journal. He served from 1976 to 1977 as a law clerk to the Honorable Arlin M. Adams, United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. Glenn joined Simpson Thacher in 1978 and became a partner in 1984. He became of counsel in 2013 and a retired partner in 2014.

Glenn is currently a member of the boards of trustees of Partners for Health Foundation (a public charity that supports health-related initiatives in 15 counties in Essex and Passaic Counties, New Jersey) and Bloomfield College (a private college located in Bloomfield, New Jersey). Previously, he was chair of the Kessler Foundation (a public charity dedicated to improving the lives of people with disabilities) and chair of the Yale Law School Fund Board (the development advisory body of the Law School). He continues to be active with the latter two organizations in his capacity as chair emeritus.

Glenn joined the board of trustees of Partners for Health Foundation in 2015.
